"The books transported her into new worlds and introduced her to amazing people who lived exciting lives. She went on olden-day sailing ships with Joseph Conrad. She went to Africa with Ernest Hemingway and to India with Rudyard Kipling. She travelled all over the world while sitting in her little room in an English village."— Roald Dahl, Matilda

It might feel like we're stuck inside but pick up a book, comic or magazine and you can escape these four walls.

Your reading challenge:

Read a book, comic or magazine and tell someone about the world in which it is set.

How many places can you visit through books?

If you run out of stories at home why not ask a parent to sign up to free audiobooks at: stories.audible.com

BOOK MIX UP

You will need:
Paper
Pencils or pens
Scissors

The Great BOOK MIX UP

Think of a book or story you've read before. This could be something you read at school or at home.

Make a story map for this book and colour it in so it looks pretty. Next, cut the picture up into 8 pieces -you can do this in a random way, each piece can be a different size- to look a bit like a jigsaw.

Mix the pieces up and tell a family member the story. See if they can use your story telling to put the picture back together. See how hard it gets if you mix more than one story together!
